ADHD: What You Need to Know – A Q&A with Dr. Stephen Hinshaw

Stephen P. Hinshaw, Ph.D.

Distinguished Professor of Psychology
University of California, Berkeley

Professor of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences
University of California, San Francisco

Wednesday, December 4, 2024

7:00PM – 7:30PM EST via Zoom

Teachers, school counselors and other educational professionals are on the front line in helping students with mental health challenges and can be among the first to notice when a child is struggling. In their pivotal relationships with students and families, these professionals are often in a position to match resources with needs. By expanding their knowledge of mental health issues experienced by young people, school faculty and staff may be better able to intervene earlier and make referrals for evaluation and assistance which can positively impact student well-being, performance and family life.

This conversation will provide educators with a deeper understanding of Attention-Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder and the variety of ways ADHD presents in young people. BBRF President & CEO, Dr. Jeffrey Borenstein and Dr. Stephen Hinshaw will discuss the different ways the disorder manifests, differences in presentation between boys and girls, and provide advice for caregivers and educators as to how to help young people lead successful lives after diagnosis.

Registration will be required for this FREE event.
